The Fu fazang yinyuan zhuan (Accounts of the Transmission of the Dharma Treasury) is a fifth-century Chinese narrative that traces the transmission of the Buddhist Dharma through twenty-three Indian patriarchs, from Mahākāśyapa to Siṃha Bhikṣu. Combining vivid biographical storytelling with past-life narratives, miraculous episodes, and accounts of royal patronage under King Aśoka, it is the earliest surviving Chinese account of the patriarchal lineage that would become foundational to the Chan (Zen) tradition.

This translation was produced with AI assistance from the text preserved in the Taishō Tripiṭaka as T2058 in six fascicles. It is offered as a preliminary rendering to support study and research, and should not be regarded as a definitive scholarly translation. No complete English translation of this text has previously existed.

BDK English Tripiṭaka Series

ACCOUNTS OF THE TRANSMISSION OF THE DHARMA TREASURY

Numata
Center

BDK ENGLISH TRIPIṬAKA

ACCOUNTS OF THE TRANSMISSION OF THE DHARMA TREASURY